Prof. Koch's Lymph.
BERLIN, Nov. 23.—In a lecture delivered last night Dr. Bergmann stated that the secret of the composition of Prof. Koch's curative lymph was exclusively the property of the professor. The doctor then illustrated the degree of fever after each injection and the quantity of lymph variously required. There has been no diminution in the number of physicians visiting the city to investigate the new system of treatment, over one hundred and thirty arriving yesterday. The Prussian Government will soon present a bill for the consideration of the Diet, providing for the establishment of an institute of bacteriology, in order that Prof. Koch may push his investigations. The institute will be equipped with five infirmaries, containing 100 beds. In addition to allowing Prof. Koch an adequate grant for his great services, the Government will assume the task of furnishing the lymph.

It is said that the Home Secretary has himself investigated the charges and come to the conclusion that they are without foundation and also that the stories were previously investigated by Sir W. Harcourt of Gladstone's Government and found to be untrue, and that Mr. Gladstone came to the same conclusion.

LEADING A DOUBLE LIFE.
Another Book-keeper Gave Wrong and a Woman at the Bottom of It.

Another man leading a double life has been found, or rather the discovery that he led a double life has been made, the man himself having disappeared. A short time ago Henry H. Spiker left the Tribune, a German evening paper, where he had been employed as book-keeper several years, and went South for his health and it is now claimed that an investigation of his books shows a number of false entries and a shortage of several thousand dollars. In the accounts, covering a period of five or six years. Last July he sent his wife to Europe and having broken up house-keeping he went to board with Mrs. O'Dell, a widow living at 223 South Eighteenth street. Six weeks ago Mrs. O'Dell sold off her furniture at auction and soon afterwards left the city for Louisiana, where she claimed to own a plantation, and the story is that Mr. Spiker has followed her to New Orleans. She lived with a man whom she introduced to acquaintances as her brother and who, she said, was in the photograph business, and up to last June they lived over the barber shop at 1702 Chestnut avenue, and at this time Mr. and Mrs. Spiker kept house on the second floor of No. 1120 Second Grand street, the first being occupied by Mr. Wm. L. Fitzgerald and his family. Mrs. Fitzgerald says that they seemed to get along nicely together and that she never suspected anything wrong with Mr. Spiker until one day last summer when a young lady, a cousin of hers and a member of her family, accidentally learned that he was visiting Mrs. O'Dell. The young lady was at Mrs. Spiker's notion store adjoining the barber shop when Mr. Spiker turned into the stairway leading up to Mrs. O'Dell's room. She remarked, "There goes Mr. Spiker," he comes at our house." "Why no," replied Mrs. Spiker, "that's Mrs. O'Dell's house." Mrs. Fitzgerald says that Mrs. Spiker was a very nice lady, a lovely woman, in fact, while Mrs. O'Dell was anything but an attractive woman, having a protruding mouth and teeth that were visible all the time, in fact is a victim of consumption and is not expected to live long. Mrs. O'Dell claimed that she had seen a white man, who she said was a confederate soldier, at Chouteau avenue, that she and her husband were going to New Orleans to get married and were going to live there.

STILL UNEXPLAINED.
The Present Abode of Stanley Kenrick Has Not Yet Been Made Known.

The detectives still decline to make any statement concerning the whereabouts of Stanley Kenrick, and no reliable information has been obtained concerning where he has gone or what he is doing. Mr. Napton refuses to say anything about his client except that he is satisfied of his safety and freedom. Kenrick has not been seen since he left the Four Courts on Tuesday evening. Where he was taken and where he has gone since are questions that can only be answered by those who decline to do so.

An investigation of the strange visit paid to Mrs. Morgan by two ladies has not resulted in a discovery of the identity of the two visitors. There are relatives of the Stillwell family in St. Louis, but the ladies say they have not called on Mrs. Morgan and have not seen her. Information has been received which connects another woman with the case, and it is very likely that when the story of the murder was told to a negro was confided with Sam Rhodes, who is employed by the Stillwells and who bears a good reputation. From what can be learned it is judged that the trail of the murderers is not and is being followed closely.

He pronounced her condition as dangerous, but said there was a chance for recovery. No reason is known for the suicide. Mrs. Wagner is about 25 years old and has recently separated from her husband. The latter's address is not known.

NEW UNION DEPOT.

The Site for the Big Structure Selected at Last.

A $2,000,000 End Depot to Be Built at Twentieth and Market Streets.

The Edifice to Be One of the Handsomest and Largest in the Country—An Ordinance for the Condemnation of Property to Be Introduced into the Council To-night.

The New Union Depot has been positively located at last.

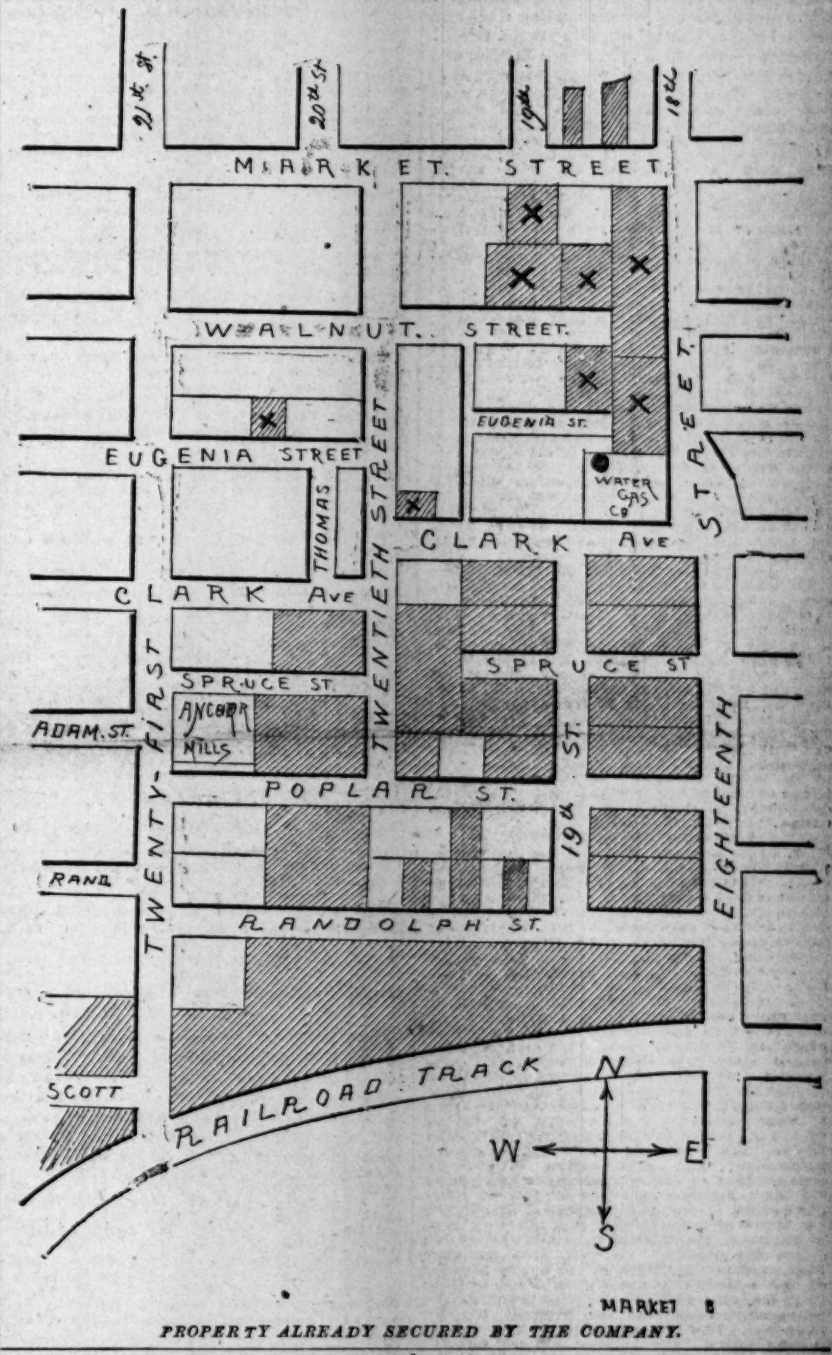

It is now asserted upon absolutely reliable information that it will be built at once, fronting on Market street, between Eighteenth and Twentieth streets, and extending south to the present railroad tracks. An ordinance will be introduced to-night granting the Terminal Railway Co. the right to use Nineteenth street building will begin. There will be no delay about construction, and it is expected that within a year the long wished-for depot will be completed and occupied by the roads entering St. Louis.

The outlay of money is sufficient to cover the cost of the elaborate plans which have been prepared and St. Louis will have what she has long expected, one of the finest depots in the country, fully equal to the wants of a city of its size and importance. The tracks will enter the rear of the depot on curves from the east and west, while the entrance for passengers will be on Market street alone. The precautions which are taken elsewhere will be taken here, and comfortable waiting-rooms will be provided for passengers, where they will remain until time for their train to start. The modern methods of handling trains will be put into use, and the depot will be complete in its equipment as in its construction.

DEBATING THE SITE.
The interested parties have acquired all the property necessary for locating the building, the estimated cost of which will, as stated above, be $2,000,000.

The officers of the company state that it was found necessary to make disguised purchases to prevent values jumping to unreasonable figures.

and the east and west streets between Market street and the tracks. It is to cost $2,000,000 and will be one of the handsomest structures of the kind in the country.

The Terminal Co. has been preparing for this move for some time and the ordinance will require the condemnation of much less property than would be supposed.

It will be an end depot with a splendid front since beauty has been fully considered in the design. The location of the depot on Market street between Eighteenth and Twentieth streets will bring it far enough into the center of the city to make it central and convenient. The company has been crowded for track room for some time and the site of the present depot will be used for yard purposes.

All the land owned by the company on the south side of the tracks will be graded down to the level to afford additional yard accommodations and the terminal facilities will then become somewhat commensurate with the demands of the city's traffic.

The ordinance will go to its first reading to-night, and will be referred to the railroad committee for a report. It will have strong support which will no doubt overcome whatever opposition may arise and its passage is due time is beyond doubt.

DECIDING ON THE PLAN.
The officers of the company have been debating for several months what sort of plan they should adopt. More than 100 designs have been submitted, of various kinds, and each has been thoroughly discussed. After considering elevated and open-way depots in abundance, the end plan was finally decided upon as the one which furnished the easier method of handling trains and crowds and this plan was accepted as the one to be adopted for the building.

It is stated that the plans have been prepared, and as soon as the ordinance is passed the contracts will be let and building will begin.

able figures. It is now admitted that as published in the SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH several months ago, it was at one time contemplated locating north of Market street and Washington avenue was even discussed as offering a superior site owing to the fact that the extension of the tunnel from Eighth street west was pronounced by engineers to be perfectly practicable, but the objection was the immense cost and opposition in crossing Olive street with any plan. This prevented the company from further considering this point and decided them in favor of the end depot, on Market street between Eighteenth and Twentieth streets, on the site shown in accompanying cut.

THE PLANS PREVIOUSLY OUTLINED.
Several months ago when it was definitely decided that a new Union Depot was an immediate necessity, the POST-DISPATCH outlined the plans of the Big Seven, and published the fact that plans for the new structures were being made by a local firm of architects. It has always been the opinion of the knowing ones that the depot would be located between Eighteenth and Twentieth streets and the purchase of property north of Market street caused the opinion that it was the intention of Mr. Gould and his associates to build the new depot on Twentieth and Washington avenues. The fact that it would be necessary to cross Olive street with tracks rendered this scheme impracticable and the location as given above was finally decided upon.

Washington, 28; State University, 0.

The game of foot ball between the Washington University team of this city and the eleven of the Missouri State University of Columbia brought on an attendance of 5,000 people to Sportsman's Park yesterday afternoon. The game was very fast and stirring and a very large percentage of the crowd were ladies, their bright costumes adding materially to the beauty of the scene. The State University boys showed a woful lack of knowledge of the game and were completely overmated, the Washingtonians defeating them by the score of 28 to 0.

For a time the play was very even, but the home team began to retain possession of the ball nearly all the time and were forcing matters, the playing being near the goal. Reiser made one splendid run and Tuttle made a fine goal. The game was then in the hands of the home team. Finally the visitor got the ball back in a few yards of Columbia's goal, and made a splendid run, but the home team made a touch-down, the first point of the game. H. Reiser tried for the goal, but knocked very near the goal post. The home team then made a touch-down, and the game was over, the score being 4 to 0 in favor of Washington University.

The local team had it all their way in the second half of the game, the visitors going to pieces. It was not long before Frank Harney made a splendid run and a fine goal. The home team made the score 10 to 0 in favor of St. Louis. Columbia's defense was very touchy, and the home team made many touchdowns, adding to the score many tallies to the Washington's score. Harney made another splendid run and a fine goal, and the game was over, the score being 20 to 0 in favor of Washington University.

Base Ball Spreading.

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 28.—A. G. Spalding received a letter from Australasia yesterday in regard to the project of having base ball games in 1893 between teams representing Australia, England and the United States to decide the championship of the world. The letter stated that base ball was gaining favor rapidly in Australia, and it was thought that in 1893 the United States National League team of that country might be able to give the National League team of this country a good and pretty taste. Sir John Wood of Preston Villa, England, an ardent admirer of base ball, who in Chicago a short time ago stated that in 1893 England would have a team that could play good ball. Mr. Spalding thinks the success of the scheme and it will be talked over later.

He is a large, stout person, who has a round face, a bald head and a pushing manner. He is certainly expected to be a millionaire in the most prominent theatrical circles, or he glows upon the public from the most conspicuous tables of the restaurants. Formerly he was always surrounded by acquaintances; now-a-days he attends the play alone, and his only companion at dinner is a waiter, who holds a bottle of champagne in his hand. He invariably stands on the corner of the table with the label turned towards the dining people.

THE SEAL DEPREDACTIONS.

A Serious Wrangle Between the Present and Former Lessees.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Nov. 22.—Reports of Depredations by British vessels at the seal Islands are current here of the same tenor as those telegraphed from Washington. It will not be possible to obtain confirmation or particulars until the chartered steamer Bertha returns to Port Townsend from her cruise to Behring Sea and the Seal Islands. This vessel was hired by the TREASURY Department from bandant material for a congressional inquiry. The present lessees, the North American Commercial Co., charge Treasury Agent Goff, who is the chief of the Alaska division, with arbitrarily impeding their operations under the lease in the interests of the old lessees who hold the competing lease of the Russian Seal Islands. On the other hand the Alaska Commercial Co. accuse the present lessees of having been largely engaged in seal poaching during the season just closed and of neglecting their obligations to the Government of the United States. The Customs-house officials discredit wholly the accusations made against Agent Goff, whom they pronounced a very efficient officer, and they do not believe

ANOTHER ARREST.

Robert Gerke, a 30-year-old record of do-gooder, who is known to the catchers at the pound, who is also known as "Robinson" and "Turkey," was arrested this morning by Viehl and Fagin for refusing to answer questions about the beer checks. Gerke does not know of the beer checks.

After breakfast they remained in their apartments at the Arlington, receiving guests from prominent naval and other official circles. At 11:30 o'clock, when they were driven to the residence of the Secretary of State was delayed by a mistake by the Cabinet meeting. On his arrival the Brazilian party was escorted to the exclusive mansion and received by the President and his family in the East-room. The officers wore uniforms and military uniforms. Sixteen pieces of music, the Marine Band, under the direction of Lt. Sousa, stationed in the lobby of the mansion, rendered the Brazilian national anthem, and the visitors entered. The Irish Delegates at Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 28.—The six representatives of the party in Ireland in the British Parliament—Messrs. Dillon, O'Brien, Gilli, O'Connor, Sullivan and Harrington—will meet in conference this afternoon to pass upon the great question of Mr. Parnell's resignation of the leadership of his party. Mr. O'Brien has already given his personal expression, through these dispatches. In an interview this morning he reiterated this sentiment, and, in the hearing of his colleagues, to what would be the action of his colleagues. In speaking of his experience in this country, Mr. O'Brien said:

Rapp would get into trouble. He said he knew Rapp a long time, but did not know that he would be the man when he said he knew the checker up on the track. He knew the checker belonged to Flack for the reason he seemed to buy beer with them. Rapp had cleared all through the investigation that he gave the checks to his little sisters to play with. He said he asked what Rapp did with the checks he said:

"Rapp went behind the dog pound and threw them in a hole when he saw the men there."

Rapp was called in and was told that he lied in all his statements and was threatened that if he did not tell the truth it would go against him. He said he was told that his father denied his story about giving the

We have welcomed her to the family of American commonwealths with profound interest and the strongest hopes that her Government and people may realize this order of merit and its value. In many cases we have sent out local committees to the minor towns and they have met with much success. We have been able to get press, officials and public have treated us with the utmost kindness, and nothing could have been better than the reception and sympathy extended to us. We have yet to discover our first enemy since arriving, and not until we have done so will we be able to support our purpose. Our gratitude to America is deep and sincere."

"Yes," I said. "But I found the checks, and that's the truth."
"When did you throw them away?"
"You know the pound, Blackie," I said. "I came up and my mother told me to watch out that some man was looking around here. I knew they must be the men who were behind the house and I threw them in the hole."

A Change of Programme.

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 28.—It is announced that Gov. Fifer will not be able to preside at the Dillon-O'Brien mass meeting here, owing, it is stated, to the pressure of official business at Springfield. The proposed banquet to the visitors on Monday evening has been given up, it is stated, at the express wish of the delegates, who are anxious to fill all the engagements they have made to speak at various places in the West and return to England as soon as possible. The condition of affairs in Great Britain is given as the reason for the change of programme.

Andrew Carnegie's Advice.

His disappearance was discovered an hour after his disappearance, but no trace of him has yet been discovered. E. I. Douglass, the guard in the ward at the time of the escape, has been summoned.

"The selection has demonstrated," said Mr. Kewell, "that such a law is necessary, not only in the South, but in the North and West. Things were done in my State that would have been illegal under this bill."

You must remember that the penal clauses of the bill apply to all parts of the Union. It is only the supervisory clauses that are so drawn as to be applicable to the Chicago district will come under the operation of the penal clauses and so will the law of the old district. Indeed, the bill is a necessity in every section where there is

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Andrew Carnegie is among the first and most steadfast friends of one race. Several of the Irish leaders now in America, including Messrs. Dillon, Sullivan and O'Connor, were with him the other evening. Mr. Carnegie's advice to them, in the present unfortunate position of affairs, was, according to the Tribune, that three Irish should be telegraphed to Carnegie: "Resign, manly return." This is the solution of the whole question, and forecast for the future.

The Breach Widenng.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—The breach in the Irish alliance was first assailed by Mr. Parnell.

White, who were last Wednesday convicted on ballot-box stuffing, were to-day sentenced by Judge Lippincott in the Hudson County Court to one year and six months' hard labor in the State Prison at Trenton. The prisoners had bondsmen present and their counsel will at a writ of error for appeal as soon as the bonds are signed.

position on the question of the leadership of the party, is steadily widening, and it is feared that the breach will extend to the elections. If Parnell retains his seat, at least a dozen respected members will resign and appeal to the people. Parnell's supporters say that this is a challenge which he cannot ignore, and so the strife goes on. It is said that Parnell has been consulting with his agents to the Irish party, which, if known by the outside world, would modify the opinions held concerning his action. The Liberals recently have been acquainted with the evidence to be introduced by the prosecution, and a failure to appear was a confession that the

The amounts already confessed by him to have been borrowed shortly before the bank closed its doors, also appears that H. H. Mahopack and H. H. Mahopack, who have the same drew $700 each. After a farcical six days' custody for the calf, Mr. Ford was allowed to take it home. He was told that the farmer and his wife had been "satisfied" with the calf. To his surprise he found that some malicious person had put a rip in the calf's tail off. Mr. Ford was asked if he knew who cut the animal. Mr. Ford said he did not know, but seemed surprised when he heard the animal was abused in this manner. Ford took the calf home five days later, a farmer by the name of George called at Francis' house and claimed the calf. When Francis refused to give it up, he swore out a writ of replevin for the calf. Constable Chas. Vincent, armed with the writ, attempted to take the calf, but could not find it. "THE SILVER'S STOLEN"STARTLING ANNOUNCEMENT PRECEDING
MR. T. CRAM'S THANKSGIVING DINNER.A Ruthless Sneak Thief Makes Away With the Family Plate on Thanksgiving Eve—
He Can Keep It by Telling How He Got
It—A Neat Job.

The Thanksgiving dinner of Mr. George T. Cram, President of the Third National Bank, and his family was partially spoiled yesterday in a most aggravating way by the work of some unknown persons of thievish propensities who had evidently no respect for the great Puritan holiday which the Third National's President was prepared to celebrate with true New England fervor.

It was a case of mysterious burglary brought to light at the eleventh hour. The forenoon of Thanksgiving Day had passed pleasantly enough in the handsome home of Mr. Cram at 5475 Chamberlain Park. The family had come to church and listened to many excellent reasons why they should be thankful for blessings received during the year past, and had returned home fully prepared to return heartfelt thanks over a bountiful dinner, and to enjoy Thanksgiving after noon and evening to its fullest extent. The hour for dinner drew nearer and nearer, and Mr. and Mrs. Cram were anxiously expecting the summons to table, as were also the young ones of the family, whose anticipations of turkey preceded, flanked and followed by innumerable other good things dear to the childish heart, or stomach, to be more literal.

Sure enough, at the critical moment a servant appeared at the door of the apartment where the family were gathered. But the face of the domestic was troubled and agitated, and instead of a cheerful greeting, she uttered the words: "The silver is stolen."

The Thanksgiving dinner of the Cram family was ready, she locked appealingly at Mrs. Cram and escaped out.

A STARTLING ANNOUNCEMENT.
"Oh, me! me! the silver's all stolen!"
The lady addressed in this startling fashion sprang up with all the suddenness of a housewife whose dearest treasure had been "stolen" by a sacrilegious invader, and hurriedly followed the excited maid to the place where the silver was kept. The process of being completed by Mr. Cram himself and the rest of the family.

Sure enough the silver was gone beyond a doubt. Every drawer of the chest wherein it had been carefully locked away was open, and horribly vacant. How the robbery had been committed, or when, was a mystery to which not a solitary clue had been left by the perpetrators of the deed. They had in some way gotten to the silver, unlocked the chest and the different drawers, not one of which showed any sign of having been forced open, and made a clean sweep of the plate that was to have brightened the Thanksgiving table of the bank president. His Thanksgiving dinner was accordingly taken in a silver lining, and the ill-timed robbery formed the main topic of family conversation during the progress.

The neatness with which the robbery was committed seems to have increased its victim more strongly than the loss of the silver. In discussing the catastrophe which ushered in his Thanksgiving feast, Mr. Cram said to a Post-Dispatch reporter this morning:

"I would be willing to donate my silver to the thief if he will only call on me and tell me how he got away with it. You know of late there have been a good many sneak thieves in our neighborhood, several houses having been entered and robbed during the past two weeks, the last one before mine having been that of Mr. H. on Chamberlain and Clara streets. Owing to this fact I have been more than usually careful about looking up the house at night, and even went so far as to have a wire on the inside of the doors which passed down through the key, securing them so that they could not be turned in the lock. Night before last I was very certain that I looked every door, but strange to say, yesterday morning the back door of the house was open, and I found a thief passing through that door could have gone as far as the dining-room where the silver was kept. The fact of that door being found open and the robbery discovered through the key, I am sure the house had been entered night before last, and another significant fact, now that the silver has disappeared, is that one of the keys to the chest where it was kept has been missing for several days. I have no suspicion of my servants whatever. They have all been with me for years, and I should as soon think of having stolen the silver as myself. I am sure the drawers of the chest, but I tell you it made things lively as it was, being discovered as we were ready for Thanksgiving dinner. The police have been at the house investigating, but there is absolutely no clue to work on, and I do not think the thieves will ever be caught."

SENSATION IN NAVAL CIRCLES.The United States Steamer Alert Discovered to Be Unseaworthy.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Nov. 28.—Startling fact in regard to the unseaworthy condition of the United States steamer Alert have just come to light. She was considered a staunch vessel, and was ordered to sail on Dec. 8 for the Chinese station to replace the Swatara, which is now little better than a hulk. In accordance with instructions from the Navy Department the Alert was provisioned and coaled for a cruise, and her crew of 150 men were got together. When all arrangements had been made for her departure at the specified time it was desired to clean her bottom. Last Monday she was placed in dry dock at the Mare Island Navy yard, and a gang of workmen were put to work. Then it was discovered that the vessel was absolutely rotten. The tools used to remove the rust and barnacles from her bottom had been made for her departure at the specified time it was desired to clean her bottom. J. H. Smith, living on St. Ferdinand street between Prairie and Vandeventer avenues, purchased a pie at F. W. Toake's grocery, 124 North Vandeventer avenue, yesterday morning. He ate the pie in the place and then complained of the ingredients, insisting that the fruit had soured. Of course Toake upheld the dignity of the pie and used such forcible language in defense of the great American luxury that a rough and tumble "scrap" ensued. Toake was badly wounded, receiving a scalp wound and painful injuries to his face. There were no arrests.
